A Mixed Bag

I have been making soy candles, homemade (from scratch), all-natural soaps and home fragrances for thirteen years. My soy candles burn all the way down, with very little (or no) soot. I hand pour into 8 oz. mason jars which can be re-used for canning (with the proper canning lid), toiletries, nuts & bolts or food goodies. My vegan soaps are made from scratch with 50% olive oil. They are fabulous! Gentle on your skin and great for helping with skin issues and winter itches.

Bags, Tags & Beyond

I started making gift bags out of old jeans and many friends encouraged me to sell them. When I had time during the COVID shutdown, my creative mind took off and I dabbled in home décor as well.

Patz Maple & Honey Farms

Our very first adventure was to make maple syrup as a hobby with our sons. After hours of cooking down the syrup in a pan in our back yard, we would finish off the syrup in our home kitchen. We then built a State-Approved kitchen with to ensure the highest quality product. We tap 15,000 to 17,000 taps using buckets.

With honey, we started with ten bee hives and through many hours of reading and hard knocks, we now have 350 beehives, which we keep in school buses to protect them from bears.

SM Artworks LLC

Although now a Deerfield resident, I was born and raised in Chicago. A former teacher and mother of four, I turned to art as a creative outlet in a busy life. To further nurture my creative spirit, I began studying art at the North Shore Art League and the School of the Chicago Botanic Garden. Strongly influenced by childhood summers spent vacationing across the lake on the shore of Lake Michigan, my artwork is motivated by and is an expression of the natural world. I favor the intense and bold colors found in nature. These vibrant colors are my signature as an artist.

This has been a great business for our family, since it has the flexibility for me to be where I need to be when I need to. I totally have control over my own schedule.
